HENRY
I'm saying this guy's not who you think he is.

DANNY
Well whoever he is? I'm gonna go find him and the son he kidnapped.

Danny starts to get in the car.

HENRY
I know where they are.

Danny stares at Henry

DANNY
So you gonna tell me or what?

HENRY
Thought we were working solo now.
(off Danny's look)
I'll drive.

On Danny -- with little choice --

Erin with Terhune. Again, we join --

START
S42

→ BOB
You ever go as Beyonce for Halloween?

Off her confused look --

BOB (CONT'D)
Blackface.

ERIN
Oh. No.

BOB
Run around topless at Burning Man, anything like that? Everything

ERIN
I always wear clothes in public.
It's like, my motto.

His smile appears and disappears in an instant.

BOB

Your ex-husband have any beefs he's been waiting to air?

ERIN

He's aired 'em all. No.

BOB

Daughter Nicky, any skeletons?

ERIN

Not that I know of.

BOB

This is all about what you do know of. You can't prevent surprises, you can only anticipate them.

ERIN

Right.

BOB

We could do this 'til sunup and still have miles to go.

ERIN

What's that mean?

BOB

Means yes, a run for anything these days is like a daily colonoscopy. But the model I've made from researching you is the best kind. Between your personal conduct and the records of service in your family, there are offsets for almost any situation that could rear up.

ERIN

That's good.

BOB

Depends on what you're looking for.

ERIN

What's that mean?

BOB

Mean if you're looking at the scrutiny as an excuse not to pursue the office, the scrutiny ain't much of one.

ERIN

Who said I'm looking for an excuse?

BOB

Isn't that what you're doing here?

Off Erin, without a wholly truthful rebuttal

TROY

JAMIE

Yeah. How you holding up?

TROY

You mean the IAB dog and pony? No problem.

JAMIE

How long you been on the job, now?

TROY

19 years.

JAMIE

Damn good run. You should be proud.

TROY

Thank you, sir.

JAMIE

Lotta guys don't know when to hang it up. You don't seem like that kinda guy.

TROY

I guess.

JAMIE

Job takes its toll. I've heard of seasoned cops tossing procedure out the window to take down perps.

TROY

Oh yeah?
